The Democrats on the Indianapolis Grand Jury absolutely refuse to concur in indictments for the famous tally-sheet forgeries This is one of the most remarkable instances of Democratic partisanship in covering up Democratic crime

The Republicans of Massachusetts are ilready beginning to agitate the question of perfecting a thorough organization for the full campugn That is just as it should he With a proper effort to bring out at full vote Massachusetts will roll up a big Republic in majority and now is a good time for the preliminary work

Mr (urtis is reported as saying that the Mugwumps will again rally to the support of the President, who, however, in his judgment will fail of an election Had the come from a lesser light it would have been denounced as high treasen by the Mugwump vote is infallible

As a factor in National politics the Demceretic curty has probably ceased to exist.

It is much has been made plain by the where is once case the Democrata put no

the third in the sace. To a party whose plurality was so marrow in the last Preside field election the drift of public osinion with this indicates is fital. Not even in the dark days which followed the outbreak of this civil war did the prospects of the Domicratic party appear as gloomy as in work for mages who have made up its rank and file in the Northern States. Without this

The Trial for the Murder of Rev. Mr. Haddock.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., April 17. The jury in the case of John Arensdorf, charged with the murder of Rev. George C. Haddock, disagreed and were finally discharged by the court at 11.50 A.M. to-day. The jury stood 11 for acquittal and ore for conviction. Dennis O'Connell was the juryman who stood out for conviction and when the jury was before the court he said that his judgment was final. The court discharged the jury from further service.

Charges and Countercharges of Bribery.

It is said that before the case closed the defense knew that the jury would-stand II to 1. After the jury was discharged the foreman went to the Judge and said he believed O'Connell was bought up by the State. The Judge said he considered O'Connell honest in his convictions. O'Connell charges that the defense tried to bribe him and that he was asked to name his price. He says those of the jurors, who wanted whiskey had it with them in their pockets and drank it. Are constantly exposed to danger from Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, and duseases peculiar to the throat and lungs. For such ailments, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, promptly administered, affords spoody robel and cube. As a remedy for Whooping Cough, with which many of our children were addicted, we user, during the past winter, with much satisfaction. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral For this affection, we consider this preparation the most officacious of all the modelines which have come to our knowledge—Many Parkhurst, Precoptress, Home for Luttle Wanderers, Doneaster, Md.

My children have been peculiarly subject to attacks of Croup, and I failed to ind any effective remedy until I commenced administering Ayer's Cherry Pectoral This preparation relieves the difficulty of breathing and invariably cures the complaint—David, G. Starks, Chatham, Columbia Cc., N. Y.

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for runny years, and have found it "specially valuable in Whooping Cough." This medicane allays all trritation, prevents a flammation from extending to the lungs, and quickly studies any tendency to Lung Complaint—J B. Wellington, Plannville, Mich.

Her arm s were round has nock, ar soft carls restee, in his cheek and the breath from her lips played upon his face! Indeed, it was soily by speaking into each others ears that conversant it was feasible owing to the rushing sound of the waters.

'Because I have something to tell you which I cannot tell unless we are going to de you know it, but I want to say it with my own I ps before I die. I love you, John I love you I love you and I am glad to die because I can die with you and go away with you

He heard and such was the power of her love that his, which had been put out of mind in the terror of that hou, reawoke and toold the color of her own. H., too, forgot the huminence of death in the warm presence of his down trodden passion. She was in his arms as he had taken her during the fitting, and he be at his lead to look at her. The moonlight played upon her pallid, quivering face and showed that in her eyes which no man could look upon and turn away from Once more—yes, even then—there came over him that 'celling of utter surrender to the sweet mas any of her will that had possessed him in the sitting room of "The Falazial." But now, all earthly considerations awing faded away, he at longer hesitated but pressed his lips against hers and kissed her again and again. It was perhaps as will and patastic a love scene its over the old moon above has looked upon There they were, those two, experiencing the fullest and soutest joy that life has to offer in the shadow of death. May, death was incent with them, for there, beneath their feet, half hidden by the water, was the stiffening compe of the Zulu.

To and too swung the cart in the rush of the swollen river, up and down buside them the carcasses of the horses rose and fell with the swell of the water, on whose surface the briken miconbeams played and quivered Overhead was the blue, star's sown depth through which they were waiting presently to pass, and to the right and left the long, briken outlines of the banks strutched away till at last they appeared to grow together in till at last they appeared to grow together in the gloom.

But they heeded none of these things, they remembered nothing except that they had found each other's hearts and were happy with a wild joy it is not often given us to feel. The past was forgotten, the future was at final, and between the one and the other was spanned a bridge of passion made perfect and anothind by the approaching end. Bessie was forgotten, all things were forgotten in that consuming fire.

Let those who would blame them pause

a while. Why not? They had kept the faith. Tay had densed themselves and run straightly down the path of duty. But the compacts of the heavy burgain for the beyond. Even the marriage service shrinks from it. And now that heps had gone and life was at its extremest obb why should they not take their happiness before they passed to the land where, perchance, all tungs will be forgotten! So it seemed to take their happiness before they passed to the land where, perchance, all tungs will be forgotten! So it seemed to take their in indeed they were any longer capable of reason.
